

Lesson on Banks

VALDEZ GUTIERREZ ALDO EDUARDO

20196650

02/12/24

INSTRUCCIONES

Antes de leer el texto escucha el mp3 2 o 3 veces para intentar saber de qué se trata.

Actividad 1, THE LISTENING TAPESCRIP

Cuando tengas la idea general, escucha el mp3 y lee el texto al mismo tiempo, descubrirás que ya reconoces varias palabras y el texto será más claro.

Actividad 2, LISTENING GAP FILL

Escucha una vez más, pero ahora completa con las palabras que han falta mientras escuchas, si es muy complicado pausa el audio mientras escribes, con esta práctica recordarás vocabulario

Actividad 3, CORRECT THE SPELLING

No es necesario poner el audio en este ejercicio, encontrarás una vez más el texto pero en esta ocasión te darás cuenta que algunas palabras están mal escritas, conforme vayas leyendo corrige estas palabras como las recuerdes que estaban escritas en los ejercicios previos, aquí practicarás como escribir correctamente el vocabulario.

Actividad 4, UNJUMBLE THE WORDS.

En esta actividad encontrarás oraciones subrayadas, estas están gramaticalmente incorrectas, quiere decir que las palabras están acomodadas mal, intenta ponerlas en el orden correcto con las estructuras que tú ya conoces o que recuerdas como estaban acomodadas en la primera lectura.

Actividad 5 DISCUSSION

Para finalizar con la actividad escoge una de las 2 opciones, escribe 5 preguntas con respuestas basadas en el texto, recuerda que cuando hacemos preguntas utilizamos auxiliares dependiendo del tiempo de la pregunta o escribe un párrafo sobre el tema.

THE LISTENING TAPESCRIPT

I'm not the world's biggest fan of banks. I've had too many bad experiences of them. I really don't know how they can advertise and say they look after you. They don't. Bank charges are way too high; you spend ages waiting to be served; and then they say no if you want a loan. The bank I bank with makes dozens of mistakes with my account. The thing they're best at is making excuses. I'm not at all surprised so many banks did badly in the credit crisis. I hope they change. Bankers get far too much money. All they do is desk work. Banks need to focus a lot more on real customer service. At the moment banks only offer an excuse for customer service. They don't even offer you a drink when you sit down and open an account.

LISTENING GAP FILL

I'm not the world's biggest fan of banks. I've had too many bad experiences of them. I really don't know how they can advertise and say they look after you. They don't. Bank charges are way too high; you spend ages waiting to be served; and then they say no if you want a loan. The bank I bank with makes dosens of mistakes with my account. The thing they're the best making excuses. I'm not at all surprised so many banks did badly in the credit crisis. I hope they change. Bankers get far too much money. All they do is desk work. Banks need to focus more on real customer service. At the moment banks only offer an excuse of to customer service. They don't even offer you a drink when you sit down and open an account.

CORRECT THE SPELLING

I'm not the world's biggest fan of banks. I've had too many bad experiences of them. I really don't know how they can advertise and say they look after you. They don't. Bank charges are way too high; you spend ages waiting to be served; and then they say no if you want a loan. The bank I bank with makes dozens of mistakes with my account. The thing they're best at is making excuses. I'm not at all surprised so many banks did baldy in the credit crisis. I hope they change. Bankers get far too much money. All they do is desk work. Banks need to focus a lot more on real customer service. At the moment banks only offer an excuse for customer service. They don't even offer you a drink when you sit down and open an account.

UNJUMBLE THE WORDS

I'm not the world's biggest fan of banks. I've had too many bad experiences of them. I really don't know how they can advise and say they look you after look. They don't. Bank charges are way too high; you spend ages waiting to be served; and then they say no if you want a loan. The bank I bank with makes dozens of mistakes with my account. The thing they're best at is making excuses. I'm not at all surprised so many banks did badly in the credit crisis. I hope they change. Bankers get far too much money. All work desk is they do. Banks need to focus a lot more on real customer service. At the moment banks only offer an excuse for customer service. They don't even offer you a drink when you sit down and open an account.

DISCUSSION Escoge una opción

Opción 2: Escribe un pequeño párrafo sobre el tema

In the text the man tells about the banks and how this banks are so bad because banks are not very helpful in their treatment of customers and do not accept their mistakes. I think this is real because I personally have some of my money in other companies such as finance companies instead of banks because they pay me a return for having my money with them.